ABM's Aviation team wins contract with JetBlue to provide catering logistic services

NEW YORK, Oct. 26, 2018 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- ABM \(NYSE: ABM\), a leading provider of facility solutions, began offering catering logistic services earlier this year and has launched a multi-year contract with JetBlue to deliver on-time, in-flight food, beverages and related supplies for their flights out of four East Coast airports.

"JetBlue's catering requirements have changed significantly over the last two years due to our expanding breadth of product, as well as the introduction of cart services for the core cabin," said Morten Buch, Catering General Manager, JetBlue. "We were looking for an industry unique partnership, including full transparency, innovation, flexibility and collaborative exploration, which we found with ABM. Corporate culture and the commitment to make a difference and be of service made ABM our partner of choice."

During the busy summer months, ABM in partnership with JetBlue and their chosen catering vendors, stood up catering logistics for JetBlue's flights at Boston Logan International, Orlando International, New York's John F. Kennedy International and Newark Liberty International airports.

"Delivering quickly on these four catering logistic startups underlines the hard work of the ABM team and is a demonstration of our competitive advantage based on listening to our customers to drive efficiency and innovation," says Alex Marren, SVP and President, ABM Aviation. "We are excited to offer this service to JetBlue and other airlines and look forward to continuing to expand our catering logistic services around the globe."
