

ABM Expands Semiconductor and Technical Services Platform with Agreement to Acquire WGNSTAR

December 17, 2025

Strategic acquisition will strengthen ABM's position in fast-growing semiconductor and technology manufacturing markets

NEW YORK, Dec. 17, 2025 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- ABM (NYSE: ABM), a major provider of integrated facility, infrastructure, and technical solutions, today announced a definitive agreement to acquire WGNSTAR, a leading provider of managed workforce solutions and equipment support services for the semiconductor and high-technology industries, in a cash transaction valued at approximately $275 million.

WGNSTAR operates across the U.S. and in Ireland, delivering technical and operational solutions through a highly skilled workforce of more than 1,300 employees and long-standing client partnerships, many exceeding two decades. WGNSTAR generates over half of its revenue from integrated workforce programs, delivering highly trained technical teams to ensure operational efficiency in chip fabrication facilities. WGNSTAR also collaborates with leading OEMs to offer equipment support services that encompass installation, maintenance, and production tool management, further enhancing productivity within fabrication environments.

The growth potential in WGNSTAR's core services is anticipated to be significant, with a multi-billion-dollar addressable market in which only a small share is currently outsourced. This creates a meaningful opportunity for ABM to expand its presence within the rapidly growing semiconductor sector. Following the acquisition, ABM's semiconductor solutions portfolio will be approximately $325 million in revenue on an annualized basis, establishing the Company among the largest integrated service providers in North America. This strategic positioning allows ABM to pursue growth driven by U.S. semiconductor onshoring initiatives, supported by CHIPS Act incentives and record levels of private investment.

Scott Salmirs, President & Chief Executive Officer of ABM, commented, "WGNSTAR's expertise in semiconductor operations and equipment services will align seamlessly with ABM's strengths in engineering, energy resiliency, and mission-critical solutions. As demand escalates for domestic semiconductor production, we anticipate this transaction will uniquely position ABM to meet our clients' evolving needs, from cleanroom and critical facility management to specialized technical services supporting chip fabrication and equipment operations. We're excited to welcome the talented WGNSTAR team to ABM and, together, provide integrated solutions in a dynamic and rapidly growing market."

Nigel Wenden, CEO of WGNSTAR, said, "I am incredibly proud of the business our team has built over the past 22 years since its founding in Ireland. Joining forces with ABM will enable us to better serve our clients in this exciting technology market with integrated and innovative solutions. Both companies share a commitment to innovation, excellence, and partnership, positioning us to meet the needs of our customers as the semiconductor industry continues to expand."

Transaction Overview

Under the terms of the agreement, ABM will acquire WGNSTAR for approximately $275 million, subject to adjustments in accordance with the agreement. WGNSTAR is expected to generate annual revenue of approximately $135 million in calendar 2025, with adjusted EBITDA margins in excess of ABM's Manufacturing & Distribution ("M&D") segment, along with an anticipated annual growth rate of about 10%.

The acquisition is expected to be modestly dilutive to adjusted EPS in fiscal 2026, primarily due to amortization of acquired intangibles and related interest expense. However, the acquisition is anticipated to be $0.05 to $0.07 accretive in fiscal 2027 and accelerate thereafter, driven by growth and synergy realization. WGNSTAR's results will be reported as part of ABM's M&D segment.

The transaction will be funded through a combination of cash on hand and existing credit facilities. The transaction is expected to close during ABM's second fiscal quarter of 2026, following required regulatory review in the U.S. and Ireland and satisfaction of other customary conditions.
